Questions & Answers

What is the difference between Prepaid Credits and Photo Volume?

The Prepaid Credits can be bought anytime, never expire and all your cameras can use until they run out or you top them up. The Photo Volume on the other side is included in a Service Plan. It can only be used to send photos and is valid for the current month. As long as your Service Plan is running, it is topped up to the amount which is included in your Service Plan every month.

Can I use my ZEISS Secacams without a Service Plan?

If you do not want to subscribe to the practical features of the Service plan, you can use your ZEISS Secacams without it. Just top up your account with Prepaid Credits that your cameras can use to send photos and you are ready to start.

Is cancelling the Service Plan possible at anytime?

As long as the Service Plan isn't cancelled, it will be renewed after the booked time frame has passed. You can cancel a Service Plan at any time. When you do so, it will work as usual until the booked time frame runs out but will not be renewed. You can book a monthly or an annual Service Plan. The payment is carried out at the beginning of a booked time frame. If you want to stay as flexible as possible, we suggest the monthly plan.

I have cameras integrated in a Service Plan. Can they still send photos if the monthly Photo Volume gets used up?

If your monthly photo volume is empty but you still have Prepaid Credits, those cameras automatically use them to send photos.

Tip: If your Photo Volume runs out frequently, you should think about an upgrade of your Service Plan to a higher level. In the Professional Plan you have an unlimited monthly Photo Volume for all cameras integrated in the Service Plan.

What happens with my Photo Volume at the end of a running month?

The Photo Volume is valid for one month. So it is topped up each month (not added) to the amount included in your level of Service Plan with your amount of included cameras.
